

Since 1981, Community Resource Center has provided the opportunities, tools, resources, and strategies for nonprofit and community-based organizations throughout Colorado to do their good work better. For over 25 years, the Colorado Grants Guide® has been comprehensive tool for nonprofit organizations to find new and established funding sources.

Research Volunteer Position

The Research Volunteer will help develop and manage the Colorado Grants Guide® by updating the live database and researching funders who provide support to Colorado nonprofits and communities using public information like organizational websites and accessing annual reports, IRS tax documents, and other financial information. You will gain in-depth knowledge on grant research and the skills necessary to sustain a nonprofit organization.

Major Responsibilities:

- Efficiently research and update funder profiles using a variety of online and public resources
- Work with proprietary and confidential information
- Communicate with the Development Program Coordinator to ensure profile accuracy
- Help develop new strategies and opportunities that can benefit the subscriber's experience
- Other responsibilities may be assigned based on the volunteer's skill set and specific interests

Qualifications:

- General computer and online research proficiency
- One year of data entry experience
- Excellent communications, writing, and editing skills
- Self-motivated with excellent analytical skills
- Highly organized and can manage time efficiently
- Access to reliable transportation to attend on-site training (and if you choose to work at CRC's office)
- Access to a computer and Internet (if working remotely)

Benefits:

- Gain insight on how to research and sustain a nonprofit organization
- Free access to onsite CRC-led trainings and workshops, as well as online webinars
- Opportunity to participate in annual State of the Sector event – December
- In-Office volunteer opportunities and celebrations
- Become a part of a team that researches, develops, and publishes the Colorado Grants Guide®
